		In about 1995 an idea was born to celebrate the Millennium by creating a massive tribute to the plant kingdom and our complete dependence on it! A group of diverse individuals coalesced into a remarkable team and turned an industrial waste site into one of the world's most amazing, lush, educational and entertaining environmental centers. About 20 times larger than the most ambitious hot houses, it features tropical jungles and arid desert climates right on the west coast of England. In a little over an hour we will sample the excitement that this project engendered and visit a breathtaking "Sustainable Disneyland of Nature", very close to where the very popular TV series "Doc Martin" has been filmed.	David Lea, from Sustain Door will host and provide Q&A, present on prospects for environmental advancements forthcoming from this project.	Holly Somerhalder, Fish Creek Library Branch Manager (920) 868-3471.
